CURES STOMACH TROUBLES

THE body gets its life from food properly digested. Healthy digestion means pure blood for the body, but stomach troubles arise from carelessness in eating and stomach disorders upset the entire system. Improperly masticated food sours on the stomach, causing distressing pains, belching and nausea. When over-eating is persisted in the stomach becomes weakened and vomit and dyspepsia claim the victim.

Theodore's Black-Draught cures dyspepsia. It frees the stomach and bowels of congested matter and gives the stomach new life. The stomach is quickly invigorated and the natural stimulation results in a good appetite, with the power to thoroughly digest food.

You can build up your stomach with this mild and natural remedy. Try Theodore's Black-Draught today. You can buy a package from your dealer for 25c. If he does not keep it, send the money to The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., and a package will be mailed you.

THEODORE'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

GREAT GOD PAN

By KEITH GORDON

Trenham arrived at Cantico at 1:30. At 2 Norton's silent, efficient serving man was formally introducing him to the Hutch—his for a month—a squat, oriental looking building standing in the tempered shade of all the pines and larches and containing all those touches of home comfort usually ascribed to feminine hands, but found in the modern bachelor quarters.

At 2:30, his tweed suit changed for a more informal costume, he emerged from the low, broad doorway, stirred by a pagan desire to get closer still to nature, out into the dim, cloistered places of the woods, where he might float deliciously upon a sea of silence, whose calm was unbroken save by the ripple of a bird note or the sipping of a twig.

"I say, this is great!" burst from his lips luxuriously as he drew in long whiffs of the suave air with his warm, elusive scent of sweet growing things. "This is life. This is what man was meant for."

As he ceased speaking he lifted his face to the soft breeze that caressed his cheek like a spirit hand and thought undulating things of civilization. What after all did this boasted condition mean? What but crowded cities with stone where turf should be, the roar of trains, shrieking of whistles, whizzing of autos, clattering of hoofs and the grind, grind, grind of office life. As he thought of it now, looking as he was straight into nature's smiling, inscrutable face, it all seemed supremely ridiculous. Fauns and satyrs, hamadryads and naiads had been wiser.

At the end of an hour's walk he found that the path ended abruptly on a grassy knoll. For a few moments Trenham gazed with an appreciation too deep for words. Then, with a sigh of contentment, he sank down upon the thick grass and stretched himself out, his head resting in the hollow of his clasped hands, his eyes narrowed to slits like gatekeepers who would say to the legions about them, "One at a time, please."

And presently the slits became narrower and narrower.

"Spring," he murmured musically, "just bursting into young summerhood." Then his lips twitched slightly, and he tried again.

That apple tree looks like some sweet, sedate Quaker lady. He stretched his eyes open wide, as if to fling off some irresistible influence.

"Good Lord, am I a poet after all?" he demanded emphatically of the shadow self that always attends us, but never so palpably as in solitudes. And then he smiled and lay staring up into the great arch of the blue above him.

Again the slits grew narrow, almost imperceptible. A line from a poem learned in youth trailed across his mind, "Great Pan is dead."

"It's a lie," he murmured drowsily. "Great Pan is not dead. Great Pan!"

The murmur ended in a knowing smile, the smile of one who has learned for a certainty what fools most mortals be, and that in turn faded into gravity. Trenham slept.

"It's a regular sleeping beauty of a place—has a breathless, charmed air, as if it were under a spell. I believe there are fairies or gnomes to be discovered."

So had Natica Duke written to a friend soon after coming to Cantico for the summer. There were few houses in the region—a half dozen within twenty miles—and her first impression of the country was only deepened by her long, solitary strolls. She had a mystical feeling that there was something to be discovered—some secret that she was forever on the verge of.

Godling, gnome or fairy, she fancied, might rise in her path at any moment without causing her any surprise, and so it was without dismay that she stopped short at the edge of the wood one day upon finding her favorite spot already occupied.

For the fraction of a second she half believed. Then she wholly disbelieved. No godlings would appear in fair ox-fords. Sandals were the utmost one could concede! Still, as a mortal the sleeping youth before her was worth consideration. A glance told her that, and she cautiously drew a step nearer.

He lay so that the spreading branch of a tree shaded his face, his soft linen hat tossed on the grass beside him. Then, revealing the thick dark hair that looked as if it might have curled had not its owner sternly refused to hear of such a thing. His features benighted her strangely of certain qualities she had seen, they were so massive, yet so finished, and with girlish attention to dress, she bestowed an approving glance on his white necktie shirt, the sleeves rolled up to the elbow, and the duck trousers to match. If he was not a godling he was at least a most attractive mortal.

Daringly she stood and gazed at him, tingling with the fear that he might awaken, yet too interested to turn away. The line of her eyes was matched by the color of the linen gown she wore. Around her neck a dandelion chain dangled like a garland of rich gold.

With a sudden movement she lifted the latter, breaking off a part of it and fastening it into a wreath. Again she hesitated. Then, with her underlip held between her teeth in a way that showed two very merry dimples, she took a letter from her dress, hurriedly extracted a tiny pencil from the envel-

Almost holding her breath, she tiptoed nearer. He was sleeping very heavily. The scrap of paper she had twisted in to the wreath. At last she stood within an arm's length of his head. She listened excitedly, but the long, even breaths reassured her.

Slowly she bent over; lower and lower the wreath descended until it rested on the crisp dark hair. With the brace of a person who feels that he is likely to be shot at any moment she straightened up and waited, but he did not move. Then, with a last admiring glance, for he looked like a veritable flower crowned god now, she fled back along the path and in a moment had disappeared in the woods.

Trenham woke from a slumber so deep that his very identity was lost. Long, long shadows darkened the sword about him. What—where—

Something pressed upon his forehead, and instinctively his hand went up, his fingers groping eagerly for some means of escape. He felt a soft, damp mass that met his touch. Then they closed upon the object and brought it around where his eyes could help.

He stared at it in silence for a moment.

"Crowned by Love" was his dazed exclamation when he at last found speech. The scrap of paper caught his eye, and he detached it, smoothed it out and looked at it with absorbed curiosity.

"I salute thee, Great Pan," was scribbled thereon in girlish hand. And at the words a light dawned upon him. Who was she, a what was she like? How strange that she, too, should have been thrilled by the same weird sense of the newness of pagan gods!

The dandelion was curling up like tired children. Trenham carried the wreath home, carefully as if it had been of the value of an eye, and he smoked many pipes that night in the soft gloom of Norton's roomy porch, wondering how and when and where they would meet and whether she was tall or short, dark or fair, his lady of dreams.

Afterward he placed himself upon having recognized her instantly, though if the truth were known it required no great perspicacity. Asked to dinner by the Stantons—the nearest neighbors, though three miles away—he had accepted on the chance of getting some clew to the young lady.

And he did. At the sight of him the only other guest, a young woman with the bluest of eyes, gave a startled but pleased look that flashed into her eyes and out again so quickly that he would scarce have been sure save for the slight flush that backed up his theory.

Later on it transpired that she was the one girl in the neighborhood, and, moreover, Trenham shrewdly argued, would be up to such pranks or even thinking of the great god Pan.

For the rest there are people who are still scandalized when they remember the queerest of the Trenham-Duke wedding. It took place in sylvan style a year later on the knoll overlooking the river, and the bride wore—can you believe it—a wreath of dandelions.

A Popular Target.
 During the famous Fenian raids in the twenties of the last century Colonel Albert Clarke of Boston went to the Fenian camp near the Canadian border. The camp of the Canadian troops was but a short distance away.

One day Clarke, wearing a light colored stovepipe hat, was strolling along through the fields a mile or so from camp. Suddenly the report of a rifle rang out, and his hat fell to the ground. Clarke picked it up and jammed it down more tightly over his head. Another report sounded from the opposite direction, and Clarke realized that his hat was the cause of the firing. He started to run and the bullets began to fly thicker and faster. When, after a hard run, he reached a piece of woods that afforded shelter he looked at his new tie, and to his dismay it was a total wreck. There were all of twenty bullet holes in it, but not one struck its owner.

The sharpshooters of both the opposing forces had been aiming their rifles at the expense of the editor's headgear.—St. Louis Public.

Defended His Theology.
 A colored Virginia preacher announced one Sunday morning: "Bred-dern an' sistern, I shall discourse dis mornin' on de power of de miracle, an' I am gwine ter take as example de children of Israel a-crosst' de Red sea. Der was Moses on de brink of de sea, an' right behin' him was de army of Pharaoh. An' all at once, breddern, de sea froze over es solid es a rock, an' de children an' Moses walked across." In the congregation were some young negroes who had been to college and whose orthodoxy had been slightly warped by one of them arose and said, "Why, parson, that can't be possible, 'cause de geographers tell us dat water don't freeze at de equator."

The old man hesitated a moment and then replied scornfully: "I jest knowed one of you young niggers was gwine ter dispute de work of de Lawd. Young man, when de Red sea froze der warn't no geography an' der warn't no equator."

Willing to Sell Out.
 The mayor of New York walked down the steps of the city hall the other evening and bought a paper from a newsboy. While waiting his change he said, "Well, my little man, how is business today?" The little merchant looked up and answered, "On de bum!"

The mayor thought for a moment and finally said: "Keep at it, my little man. You have a chance to become the president some day." The little fellow answered immediately, "Dat might be so, but I'll sell me chances for a nickel right now!"

BUYING RUBIES IN BURMA.

Grips and Signs Used in Bargaining For Precious Stones.

The peculiar business methods of oriental merchants are illustrated by the manner of buying rubies in Burma, says the Jewelers' Circular-Weekly. In the examination of rubies artificial light is not used, the merchants holding that full sunlight alone can bring out the color and brilliancy of the gems. Sales must therefore take place between 9 a. m. and 3 p. m., and the sky must be clear.

The purchaser, placed near a window, has before him a large copper plate. The sellers come to him one by one, and each empties upon this plate his little bag of rubies. The purchaser proceeds to arrange them for valuation in a number of small heaps. The first division is into three grades, according to size. Each of these groups is again divided into three piles, according to color, and each of these piles is again divided into three groups, according to shape. The bright copper plate has a curious use. The sunlight reflected from it through the stone brings out with true rubies a color effect different from that with red spinels and tourmalines, which are thus easily separated.

The buyer and seller then go through a very peculiar method of bargaining by signs, or rather, grips, in perfect silence. After agreeing upon the fairness of the classification they join their right hands, covered with a handkerchief or the flap of a garment, and by grips and pressures mutually understood among all these dealers they make, modify and accept proposals of purchase and sale.

HYPOCRITE AND VILLAIN.
 The Gentle Terms a Playgoer Once Applied to Forrest.

A number of professional men were exchanging reminiscences of Edwin Forrest, the great tragedian. One of them told the story of Forrest's experience in the vest, which was not only of interest in itself, but also a tribute to the art of the actor.

The play was "Virgilius," and Forrest was at his best. In the scene where he plays his daughter the audience was almost stricken with awe, and not a sound was heard until the scene was concluded, after which the artist was greeted with overpowering applause. In the following act Virgilius comes on the stage looking worn and distracted. The reaction has set in, he is frenzied over the loss of his daughter, and he walks up and down, crying out: "Virginia, Virginia! Where is my child?"

An old miner, who occupied a front row in the orchestra and who had been terribly wrought up by the murder scene, could stand this no longer and, arising in his place, shouted out in loud tones, freighted with intense indignation:

"Why, you old villain, you killed her in the market house in the last act. You know it well enough. You are a hypocrite as well as a villain!"

The laughter and applause that greeted this unexpected turn in the performance made it necessary to ring down the curtain.—Harper's Weekly.

The Blameless One.
 Mrs. Colburn removed her outer garments and seated herself with a thud in her rocking chair in the front window. "I declare, I never saw such a gadder as that young woman the minister married in all my life!" she said jerkily as she ran her darning ball down into the heel of Mr. Colburn's gray stocking.

"I can't go over to Mrs. Deacon Graves' of an afternoon or down to the store in the morning that I don't either find her there or see her, coming gadder, three times out of five!"

"She's an awful starter, too," continued Mrs. Colburn, pulling at a knot in her darning cotton till it broke and her elbow flew back against the sharp edge of the table. "I can't look over at her front window but what she turns her eyes this way inside o' five minutes. Don't sit there looking so numb, William! Can't you see I've half killed myself? Fetch me the liniment, quick!"

—Youth's Companion.

Not Humility of Spirit.
 A young preacher in an uptown church was much struck one Sunday by the seeming effect his sermon was having upon one of his congregation, a shabby genteel man with white hair who throughout the entire discourse sat with head bowed in deeply reverent attitude. After the service the minister pushed his way to the man and proudly said:

"I am glad to note that my sermon affected you. Did it make you see the error of your ways?"

"Oh, it wasn't that," said the man sheepishly. "You see, my waistcoat is too short, and I had to bend over to hide my shirt."—Cleveland Leader.

A Tramp's Problem.
 A tramp having found a hen's feather in his travels about the city kept it until night, when he carefully placed it on the pavement in a back alley and slept upon it. Awakening next morning and looking scornfully upon the bit of down, he exclaimed: "Gee whiz! If one feather is as hard to sleep on as that, what must a whole bedful be?"

What's in a Name.
 "Maybe I have an ugly color, as you say," said the carrot to the beet, "but when I am gone I hope some one may say a good word for me. It seems to me a dead carrot has a better chance for respect than a dead beet." And the beet turned even redder in the face and had nothing more to say.

Sonoma Valley and Her Possibilities.

SONOMA VALLEY has unlimited possibilities and it looks as if we were shortly to branch out along lines before untried. Sonoma and the grape and wine industry are long and closely associated and there seems to be every prospect for prosperity to the grape growers and wine makers, judging by the recent price brought by Sonoma Zinfandel. There have been erroneous reports circulated in the East that Sonoma vineyards and vintage had fallen off, but any one posted on local conditions knows what resistant stock has done and how our cellars are brimful of sparkling wines whose quality will be even superior to that grown in other sections of this State. The grape and wine industry is still a leading one here. Sonoma Valley is not only presided over by Bacchus, but to Ceres and Pomona we may also do homage, for golden grain and fruit yield yearly bounteous crops.

A newer industry, before untried, is that of chicken raising, which has become a permanent business and a growing one. Sonoma county is a famed locality for this industry. One half of all the eggs shipped to the San Francisco market come from this county. Living in a section where there is such unlimited opportunities for poultry raising we in Sonoma Valley should get in line with Petaluma. There are many acres of ground lying fallow year in and year out. Why not cover this ground with white chickens? We all know that chickens are money.

The hop industry here is to be experimented in and will be watched with keen interest. We all know that the olive oil industry is a success here and could be operated on a much more extensive scale.

All these industries are made possible by our climate, soil and abundant water, and if the same energy was put into the development and advertisement of this section as was put into the upbuilding of Santa Clara county and Southern California we would be no less famous.

Revolution in Russia.

THE events of the past week in Russia seem to indicate that the despotism of the Czar and his government has culminated in revolution.

No time was more fitting for a revolution than this, when Russia, beaten abroad in war with a foreign enemy, her forces demoralized and her treasury depleted, had all she could do to manage the details of the campaign abroad into which she had been plunged.

While her attention was directed on her foreign enemy she did not heed the murmuring and whispered plotting of her discontented subjects. In her anxiety to keep up her prestige, she created opportunity for the foundation of plans by the Socialistic party. They to whom opportunity was given were not slow to seize it and the present outbreak is the result. The spirit that prompted the outbreak is no new one in Russia. It was kindled centuries ago, but there has been little chance for its sane expression.

It is true that it has found expression in the rebellion of individuals and the assassination of rulers, but such action on the part of the dissatisfied was not sane nor judicious, in that it afforded but temporary alleviation of the ills which the people were heir to. To correct such evils a revolution is necessary—the government itself must be changed.

Russia has had wise and benevolent rulers. Despots though they were, Peter the Great and Catherine of Russia were model rulers, but what mattered all the temporary alleviation under these monarchs? They could not ensure the permanence of their reforms nor nominate their successors.

It is true that a good ruler may postpone revolution just as a bad one may precipitate it but it must follow where subjects come to be enlightened and recognize the importance of freedom.

Introduces Bill to Accept Mission.

SENATOR NELSON of San Francisco has introduced a bill in the legislature to provide for the acquisition by the State of several California landmarks, including our own mission San Francisco Solano, the Fort Ross property, the Viscaino and Father Junipero Serra landing place at Monterey, and the old Monterey theatre property.

The bill authorizes the Board of Sutter's Fort Trustees to receive and accept from Wm. Randolph Hearst, trustee of the California Historic Landmarks Fund, without cost to the State, the possession and title of the several properties. The bill to accept the landmarks before the legislature will if passed be of great benefit to Sonoma, as our old mission will undoubtedly then be restored and kept up.

EDWARD F. SHERMAN, who served as City Clerk of Sonoma in 1851 when General Vallejo was Mayor, urges in an article in the Oakland Enquirer that a statue of General Vallejo be one of two to represent California in Statuary Hall of the art rotunda of the National Capitol, Washington, D. C. The idea is a good one as the General was a true representative of this State.

The latest fellow to have troubles has a deaf and dumb wife and a mother-in-law. The latter "rubbers" at them when they talk in the sign language. She must "rubber." She can't listen.

CALENDAR DAY IN SUPERIOR COURT

In Department One, Judge Seawell presiding, sales of property of the estates of Andrew Jackson Reynolds and Charles W. Nicholson were confirmed to Maurice Hirsch.

Michael A. Conniff was appointed administrator on the estate of Susan Conniff in a bond of $500.

Public administrator F. L. Blackburn was named administrator on the estate of Nathan L. Blackburn. The final account of the estate of Josephine Bernstein was settled and allowed and distribution was ordered.

Julie E. Colby was named executrix of the estate of Hiram F. Baldwin. The will was admitted to probate.

F. A. Meyer was named guardian of the estate of Raymond W. Wyatt in a bond of $4900 and Melvin J. Wyatt in a bond of $1000.

These matters were continued: Estates of Charles A. Austin, et al., minors, Leonard Schwan, Armsted Goatley and George W. Park, to January 30.

The will of the late P. H. Ricklifs was admitted to probate and John P. Overton was named administrator without bonds.

Henry J. Mieli was named administrator on the estate of Rebecca Meili in a bond of $1110.

The matter of the estate of Charles H. Lengenfeldt and others, minors, was continued to January 28th.

The petition of the defendant in the action of Sarah P. Hart vs. Thomas Taylor et al., to have the money in excess of the judgment paid to him, was granted.

The petition to vest the the homestead of Matthew O'Brien in his surviving wife, Mrs. O'Brien, was granted.

The demurrer was withdrawn in the action of L. D. Batchelor vs. Margaret Denehy et al., and ten days allowed to answer.

The divorce suit of Vieira vs. Vieira, was submitted on the testimony given before the court commissioner.

In Department Two, Judge Burnett presiding, the default of the defendant was entered in the action of Fallon vs. Fallon and the case was referred to the Court Commissioner to take testimony.

The notice of motion was ordered submitted on briefs in the action of McLean vs. O'Donnell.

The decree vesting the Williams homestead was granted. E. P. Williams was the administrator.

The demurrer was submitted in the action of Haile vs. Grace without argument.

The suit of Wickersham Banking Company against Mrs. Charles Nicholas came up on settlement of the statement on motion for a new trial.

THE above picture of the man and fish is the trademark of Scott's Emulsion, and is the synonym for strength and purity. It is sold in almost all the civilized countries of the globe.

If the cod fish became extinct it would be a world-wide calamity, because the oil that comes from its liver surpasses all other fats in nourishing and life-giving properties. Thirty years ago the proprietors of Scott's Emulsion found a way of preparing cod liver oil so that everyone can take it and get the full value of the oil without the objectionable taste. Scott's Emulsion is the best thing in the world for weak, backward children, thin, delicate people, and all conditions of wasting and lost strength.

THE SUMMER SEASON

WILL SOON BE HERE.

This is to remind those who did not receive Summer Visitors last year to consider the matter now, and arrange to do so this season.

The results to those on this road who did so last year were, on the whole, very satisfactory.

We would like, also, for those who have nice camping locations to send in full particulars, terms, etc.

If you will kindly forward this matter in accord with the blank below, we shall be pleased to advertise it in our "Vacation 1905." It is necessary for us to receive the information not later than February 1st.

As signatures are not always easily read, we shall thank you if you will be very careful in writing same.

Frank M. Burris was re-elected assistant secretary and cashier of the Santa Rosa Bank at the annual meeting of the Directors on Wednesday.

H. Pellissier is having the grounds around his well known summer resort laid with crushed red cement, taken out of a quarry near the villa.

Ralph Murphy purchased a lot from Mrs. McHarvey and not from Mrs. Weems, was stated last week although he had negotiated with the latter.

General Manager James H. Frazier of the California Northwestern Railroad has been very ill. Mr. Frazier has made many friends while connected with the company and his condition has filled them with much solicitude.

Guy Weems repairs bicycles, sewing machines and all kinds of machinery. First-class mechanic. Prices reasonable, and work attended to promptly. Leave orders at Chapman's store.

A. E. Leech, formerly a prominent blacksmith of this place but now of Fulton, has received a large order for "trip" hammers from San Francisco and various parts of the State. The hammers are Mr. Leech's own invention.

John Jacobs has secured a job as foreman on the Wall ranch south of town. Mr. Jacobs is well known for his skill as a pruner, and his many Sonoma friends congratulate John for his success, and say, "stay with it Jackie."

S. S. Kulton, Traveling Passenger Agent of the Southern Pacific Company, was in town Wednesday and paid this office a pleasant visit.

Mr. Fyton, who resides in Oakland near not upon the road, is well known in railway circles.

There is no better place to stop in Sonoma than at the Langham Hotel, corner Ellis and Mason streets. It is six stories high, fireproof, convenient to all attractions, close to all car lines, and offers all the advantages of superior hotel service at small cost. The rooms are large, clean and well ventilated, and the management courteous, polite and hospitable. Write for book and rates.

WILL FOSTER'S ROAD HANDLE ROCK?

Rumor that Schocken Will Get Satisfactory Freight Rate Not Confirmed.

A rumor has gotten around that Messrs. Schocken and Weber will not build their electric railroad to Embarcadero as the California Northwestern has made them a freight rate for their crushed rock, which will make their proposed investment unnecessary.

The object of the gentlemen in building the proposed electric road to tide water is to transport the crushed rock to San Francisco.

The original rate of the California Northwestern was not satisfactory to Messrs. Schocken and Weber, and the railroad people argued that in so much as the handling of the rock would necessitate new facilities they could not make a cheaper rate to the rock owners.

Schocken and Weber then figured it out that they could operate an electric road of their own with profit. With this end in view, they have been going ahead. They would prefer, however, to have the California Northwestern handle the rock and with the latter company they have had several conferences with that end in view.

Mr. Schocken will neither affirm or deny the rumor that a satisfactory arrangement has been made, but admits that it would be an unbusinesslike proposition to build a short line of electric road between the quarries and tide water if he and the California Northwestern could come to some satisfactory understanding. The railroad people, however, would have to expend considerable money in getting cars and a boat to handle the rock and with this additional investment of capital it would seem that they would have to do a lot of figuring to make money out of a rate which would be satisfactory to Schocken and Weber.

On the other hand, the railroad people may consider the electric road so seriously that they look for loss of other freight from their line to the gain of the new railway in case it should be built.

Just what the outcome will be is hard to say. It is a rocky proposition and too ponderous and enigmatical for a Sonoma editor to figure out.

If the California Northwestern, however, decide to take the rock, it does not mean that the electric road will be a dead letter in Sonoma Valley, for J. Downey Harvey, the San Francisco millionaire, is interested in the electric franchise from here to Santa Rosa and in the end a road will be built between the two cities as an investment.

Woman's Club Hold Meeting.

The Sonoma Valley Woman's Club met on Saturday last at the club rooms on Main street. It was Plaza Section Day and the afternoon was taken up for the most part in discussing the welfare of the plaza.

In regard to the dolls left unsold from the Doll Show Miss Doris Clewe was appointed to give away any that the donor did not want back to deserving and needy children in the valley. It was decided if the weather today permitted that the ladies would plant roses, geraniums and chrysanthemums in the soil which has been plowed in different parts of the plaza. Mrs. Bates was appointed to secure the services of some one to plant the grass, as Preston R. Davis has been called away for three weeks and cannot therefore attend to it.

In regard to the fountain, the ladies discussed the advisability of erecting it elsewhere than on the plaza should the City Trustees still object. It was suggested that the fountain be put in one of the school yards, but no action was taken, as the club will await a decision from the City Trustees at their next meeting.

Mrs. Stearns, the delegate to the State Federation Convention in Los Angeles, was instructed how to vote on the different issues to come up at the State meeting. Mrs. Robert Hill, president of the club, will attend the meeting and Miss Celeste Granice was elected alternate and will also go to Los Angeles on this occasion. After the business of the club was transacted the Social Committee dispensed hospitality.

Committee to Aid Citrus Fair.

The directors of the Cloverdale Citrus Fair Association have appointed committees from neighboring cities and towns to aid in promoting the coming fair.

From Sonoma the directors have appointed Blair Hart, Fred Dubring, H. H. Granice and Granville Harris. From Glen Ellen, Harry Weise and C. J. Poppe.

The fair, which promises to eclipse all previous fairs held in Cloverdale, opens on February 21st and closes the following Saturday.

Mrs. Lemoine visited San Francisco Friday and Saturday.

Mrs. O. F. Heselchwerdt (nee Ping) are visiting in Santa Rosa.

Dr. Crepin, who has been seriously ill, is up and around again.

The Dunbar School will open on February 6th and the attendance will be good.

Rev. Mr. Chakurian gave a lecture recently "On his escape from the Turks."

The Owls dance was a big success. There was a fine crowd of dancers and good music.

A masquerade ball is one of the coming events here and our party goers are anticipating much jollity.

The Elks had a big initiation and banquet at Santa Rosa this week and Leo Justi attended from here.

Mrs. J. B. Bacon and Miss Lula Bacon have returned from Los Angeles and are now in San Francisco.

Those who know the needs of the California Home heartily wish that the legislature will make the appropriations asked for.

Capt. and Mrs. Ward recently gave a novel entertainment prior to their trip to England. They expect to leave about March the first.

Willie Youngman, the rural mail carrier, has been suffering with blood poisoning. His hand was lanced by Dr. Crepin and he is now able to resume his duties.

Rev. Chakurian, the new pastor, will preach here on Sunday. The reverend gentleman has been paying calls among his congregation and has made many good friends.

For sociability it is hard to beat Glen Ellen. There are more pleasant "at homes" and parties given here than in all the rest of Sonoma Valley put together. The social side of man's life is what makes it worth living.

Enjoy Cards.

There were seventeen present at the Whist Club meeting Wednesday night and the games were interesting and exciting. There were four tables of players and the highest score was 127 made by Dr. Estes, who captured the gentlemen's prize, a shaving set. Mrs. W. C. Nolan was the lady winner, scoring 122 and taking the lady's prize, a pearl handle pen knife.

All the members were present with the exception of Will Clewe. His substitute was Will Stofen. Those who played were Mr. and Mrs. Bates, Mr. and Mrs. Nolan, Mr. and Mrs. Mathewson, Mr. and Mrs. Simmons and Misses Fraser and Clewe, Mesdames Weems and Appleton, Messrs. Estes, Lewis and Stofen.

The Daily Evening Post and Sonoma Index-Tribune for one year for both papers, only $7.

SOLANI SENTENCED TO STATE'S PRISON

Slayer of Guidotti Denied New Trial and Gets Ten Years.

John Solani, convicted of the crime of manslaughter for having killed John Guidotti in a quarrel at Glen Ellen, was sentenced to ten years imprisonment in Folsom by Judge Seawell on Tuesday.

Solani's attorney had asked for a new trial but the Judge, after taking the matter under advisement, denied the motion. The court stated its belief that the jury had been lenient with its verdict and that the defendant had a fair trial.

When the ten years sentence was pronounced Solani showed no signs of agitation.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL MATTERS

The McElroys have moved into their handsome new home on Broadway and are about settled.

The District Deputy Grand President installed new officers at the Rebekahs Thursday night.

Oscar Mathews well known here has been made new manager of the Hotel St. Rose in Santa Rosa.

Mr. Edgar Keogh, son of Mrs. R. J. Keogh, was a guest at the Granice home several days this week.

The little daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Francis Reid has been very ill. The little one had convulsions.

Amy Poppe of Glen Ellen is one of the contestants in the Santa Rosa Republican's Portland tour contest.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Martel of San Francisco are guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gus Martel of Buena Vista Castle.

Mrs. A. Bates and little grandson, Joe McMullen, went to San Francisco this week where they visited relatives.

Miss Margaret Brunsch, an Alameda girl, who formerly visited here, is making a marked success in Berlin as a concert singer.

The Shakespeare Club met Monday night at the Duhring home. "Much Ado About Nothing" was the play under discussion.

Messrs. Graham and Kearney, prominent members of the local council of the Young Men's Institute, attended an initiation of the order in Petaluma recently.

The engagement has been announced of a handsome Schellville girl and a San Francisco young man. The young lady is not yet out of her teens but she is endowed with great beauty and a very charming manner.

Mrs. Hearst, who is abroad and has been visiting the old city of Rome, has gone to Egypt to spend the winter. She sailed a short time ago from Marseilles for Cairo. Early in the spring Mrs. Hearst will return to America, and after visiting with her son in the east will come to California about June. Little Master Hearst is not to be baptised until his grandmother arrives from abroad, as she is also to be his godmother. Mrs. Hearst's identification with Sonoma Valley is well known through her splendid vineyards "Madrone."

Capt. Hauto in St. Luke's Hospital.

Capt. J. P. Hauto, who several weeks ago crushed his hand while lifting oil tanks on his schooner, "The Four Sisters," had to have the bone of the injured finger scraped, as the accident caused necrosis of the bone. The injured member began to swell shortly after the Captain crushed it and blood poisoning set in. The condition of the hand became so serious Wednesday that Captain Hauto went to St. Luke's Hospital, San Francisco, where the operation was performed yesterday.

EL VERANO.
By Happy Hooligan.

Wm. Mullen of San Francisco was in town Sunday.

Larry Larsen was up from San Francisco last Sunday.

L. L. Lewis transacted business in Sacramento this week.

Eugene Dutil and Frank Burns of San Francisco visited here Sunday.

Mrs. L. Lamotte returned home from San Francisco Monday evening.

H. H. Elliott, representing Tillman & Bendel, was in town Tuesday.

Phil Rossi was in San Francisco the fore part of the week on business.

O. W. Nordwell came up from the metropolis Sunday to visit his ranch near this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lord of Sacramento are guests at the Lord place south of town.

Jos. R. Dowdall was a passenger on Wednesday's south-bound California Northwestern train.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Dutil attended a wedding reception at the Rouquie Villa, Vineburg, last Sunday.

Harry Baines will soon take a pleasure trip to San Francisco, where he will remain several weeks.

Wm. Kearney and R. J. Dowdall took in the Y. M. I. meeting of Petaluma Council one night last week.

Campbell MacQuiddy, who is attending the Santa Rosa High School, visited his Sonoma relatives Monday.

The people of this burg were surprised Sunday morning to observe a rig away off from the road in a near by field.

It is rumored that another summer resort will be erected in this place in time for next season's summer trade. The land it is said has already been bought for the new hostelry, which will be up-to-date in every way.

The recent storm caused considerable damage in this place and vicinity. The iron bridge which crosses Sonoma Creek opposite El Verano Villa was in great danger at one time of being washed away by the caving of the bank, and if another big storm sets in before repairs can be made the approaches will be in danger of being undermined.

A William Jennings Bryan Club has been organized in this place. Mr. Bryan's paper, The Commonwealth, has been subscribed for by a number of our citizens, and it would not surprise "Hooligan" in the least to see that great exponent of Democratic principles the standard bearer of the party in the next Presidential election. As goes El Verano so goes the Union.

Ralph Ent took in the boxing bout at Woodward's Pavilion, San Francisco, on Friday night last. One of the attractions was the bout between Ah Wing, the Chinese scrapper, and a Mexican man pugilist. Ralph says the Chinook scored a knock out with a pivot blow in the second round. He says it was an accident and that he has got money to bet that he himself could put the Monk out in a few rounds and he don't claim to be a pugilist that's going some, either.

SONOMA PASSENGERS SEE SAD SPECTACLE

Man Run Down by Train and Picked up but Dies Shortly Afterwards.

The Sonoma passengers aboard Thursday night's train witnessed a sad spectacle near Reed's Station, where a man who had been struck by the San Rafael "Flyer" was picked up in a dying condition and placed aboard the train.

The man who was walking the track was overtaken when on the long trestle near Reed's. He stepped aside to let the train pass but there was not room enough for him to get out of the way and he was struck by the first car. When the second section under conductor Jack Smith came along it was flagged and the train crew went after the body. It was necessary to go around the hill in order to reach the spot where the man had fallen and the train was delayed some time before he was gotten aboard. Dr. O'Brien of Petaluma, who was a passenger, was called to see the injured man but the patient died before the train reached San Rafael.

The unfortunate was undoubtedly a tramp whose recklessness in walking the trestle cost him his life.

SAN FRANCISCO'S GREAT THEATRICAL EVENT.

Klaw and Erlanger's Mighty Spectacle, "Mother Goose."

Monday, February 6th, at the Grand Opera House, San Francisco, the most notable theatrical event of its class will take place, when Klaw & Erlanger will present their colossal production of the greatest of the English Drury Lane spectacles, "Mother Goose" at that theatre, beginning an engagement of four weeks with matinees Wednesday and Saturday of each week. An idea of the immensity of this production may be gleaned from the fact that more than 400 comedians, singers, dancers, and pantomimists appear in it, and seventeen scenes each as elaborate as an entire ordinary production and more beautiful than has ever been seen upon the American stage are used. The costumes number 2000 and cost alone $75,000 to produce. "Mother Goose" ran an entire year in London and all last year in New York City at the New Amsterdam Theatre. It is the first play of its class ever presented on the Pacific Coast, and will not be seen outside of its San Francisco run. It is described as being the mightiest exposition of beauty, quick rattling fun, charming melody and spectacular magnificence known to theatrical history. Its production will be with the original cast and every detail of gorgeousness which has made the presentment the most talked of and notable theatrical event of the past two years in the United States. Never has so much (in the way of quantity) been offered for the money. The impression produced by "Mother Goose" is that of a dream of color, costumes, calcium and hosts of beautiful women, a dream that never stops for a moment. Moving pictures are as nothing to this delightful phantasmagoria. It is a succession of startling changes, each one being more beautiful than that preceding it. Then there are the wonderful aerialists, who do amazing ballets suspended in the air, one of them, without warning, astounding the audience by darting over their heads clear to the back wall of the theatre, all the while scattering natural flowers to those below. The music is harmonious and catchy; the fun rollicking and in good taste; the specialties novel and entirely different from those seen in other entertainments of this kind. From a more than causal study of "Mother Goose" it deserves the great success and lavish praise that has been bestowed upon it by playgoers of London and New York.

The sale of seats will begin Thursday morning, February 2nd, the prices being 50c, 75c, $1, $1.50 and $2.00. Mail orders, accompanied by remittance, addressed to H. H. Campbell, Grand Opera House, San Francisco, will be promptly attended to.
